LET'S GO TO THE PARK!

ROBERT SOULIÈRES
LOÏC MÉHÉE

"How about we go to the park?"

At the park, a whole new world comes to life for a father and his son. For one afternoon, they take turns becoming brave knights, castle architects, guests of the ants, fearless pirates, and astronauts. Their imagination and joy know no bounds... for both the child and the adult!

THAT'S MY BED!

SYLVAIN BOUTON

Exhausted from his day's adventures, Little Bear heads to his room for a nap... or at least he tries to. Unfortunately, his bed is already occupied by an unknown girl with honey-colored curly hair. Once he recovers from the surprise, Little Bear tries to evict the intruder, who sleeps peacefully with a faint smile on her face. Determined, Little Bear spares no effort or imagination in his quest to wake her up. But will he succeed in reclaiming his bed? That remains to be seen!

THE LION IN THE BOOK

DANIELLE CHAPERON
AURÉLIE GRAND

"I would love to read this book, but there's a lion taking up all the space."

A child wants to read the book in front of them. But a huge feline has decided to take a little nap there. How do you move a lion? With a net? A catapult? Maybe by discreetly opening the window to let the birds wake it up. Will they be able to move it to allow us to read this little album?

THE BIG BLACK BOX

MARIE BARGUIDJIAN
CYRIL DOISNEAU

A strange black box sits enthroned in the living room, intriguing baby to no end. Every day, Mom sits on it, places her fingers on it, and then the magic happens... music fills the room and the child's ears, and he's charmed. Slowly, little by little, the exploration of the piano object and its capabilities fascinates the little fellow, who is eager to discover this wonder.

So, a few days later, he excitedly unwraps his birthday present and discovers Arthur! Yes, the super vacuum robot is now officially named Arthur.

At first, everything is a honeymoon, but as days go by, Arthur's little flaws begin to surface, and the family starts to grow exasperated with sharing their daily lives with the robot. That's when Phil has the genius idea to give Arthur to his grandmother. Though skeptical at first, she eventually finds her own unique way of handling the "beast"!

FURBALL

MICHAËL ESCOFFIER | BÉRENGÈRE DELAPORTE

Furball runs in his circles, and he counts each turn: "228... 229... 230...". He is devising a plan to make it outside and frolic in freedom. To him clover, alfalfa and wildflowers! But will Furball succeed? The little hamster, born of Michaël Escoffier's imagination, dreams of freedom and wide open spaces. Throughout his adventure, he speaks directly to the reader as he experiences a range of emotions. Bérengère Delaporte renders a rodent as expressive as it is fluffy. An album that reminds us that moments of complete freedom and a tranquil home can sometimes go hand in hand.

— N'avez-vous pas quelqu'un de proche que je pourrais prévenir?

— Il y a ma fille qui vit de l'autre côté de la forêt, mais je ne veux pas la déranger.

— To, ta, ta! Je vais passer la voir et lui dire que vous êtes souffrante. Bonne journée, Madame Perrault!

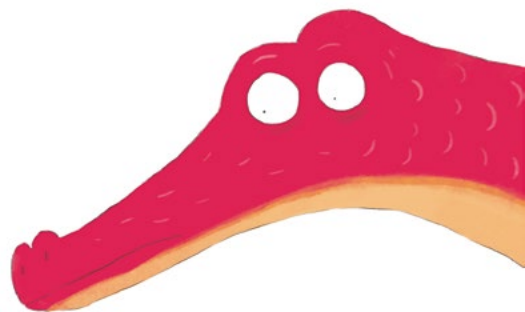

— Mais... pourquoi te diriges-tu par là?

RHÉA DUFRESNE | ORBIE

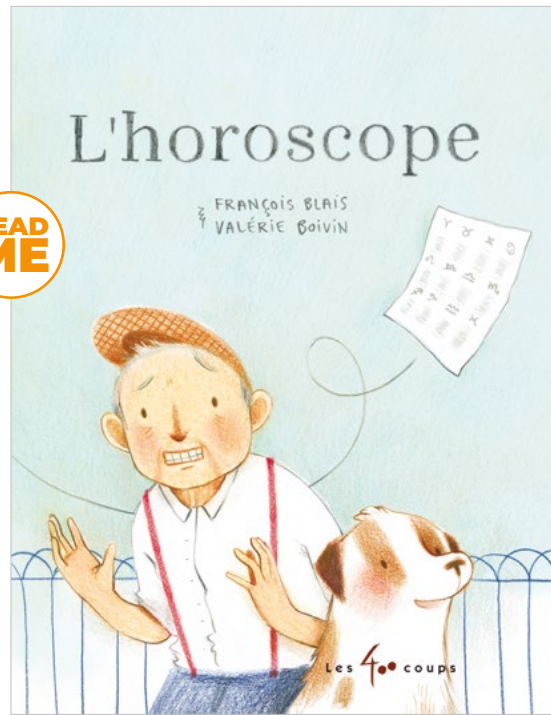

"First, she led the boarding of Brad-Dents-d'acier ship, then she chose the location of our new treasure and took my favourite sword. If this continues, she's going to commandeer my cabin. It can't go on like this anymore! It's her or me!" he says to himself. But Sven is lucky because at that very moment, a fleet of ships full of knights is approaching. They've come to retrieve the princess and take her back to her father. But these handsome people have no idea what they have just embarked on. It would be a shame to think that Anémone would give up piracy so quickly.

THE HOROSCOPE

FRANÇOIS BLAIS
VALÉRIE BOIVIN

Every morning, an old man wakes up, eats breakfast, and goes out to take care of his garden. He is a man of habits. With his dog, Lucien, the old man makes sure to never break his routine. He hates everything that is new. But, on a windy day, a gust sends him a newspaper page with the horoscope on it. "Something unexpected is coming to break your routine" says his horoscope sign. For someone who hates the unexpected, the nightmare is just about to begin.

7 VERY GOOD REASONS WHY CATS ARE BETTER THAN DOGS

CHIARA BAGLIONI

On a rainy evening, Kitty lounges by the fire with a glass of milk in hand, determined to convince skeptics that cats are indeed far superior to dogs. After all, everyone knows that cats are agile, silent, and were even worshipped by ancient civilizations. But isn't it said that dogs are man's best friend?

HOW DOES A DETECTIVE STORY WORK?

OLIVIER DUPIN

After How Does a Fairy Tale Work?, Olivier Dupin returns with How Does an Investigation Work? Armed with his humor and talent for explaining complex ideas, he breaks down for young readers the essential elements of a good detective story. From the crime to uncovering the culprit, and through clues, hypotheses, suspects, and alibis, we follow Jim and Diego in their sleuthing adventure. And, of course, there's Ferdinand, without whom our two detectives might have spent a long-time stuck searching for the stolen eggs.

This book will surely inspire readers to pick up a pencil and create their own detective stories.

"Since a young age, Jean-Rex has been preparing for one thing: To scare people!"

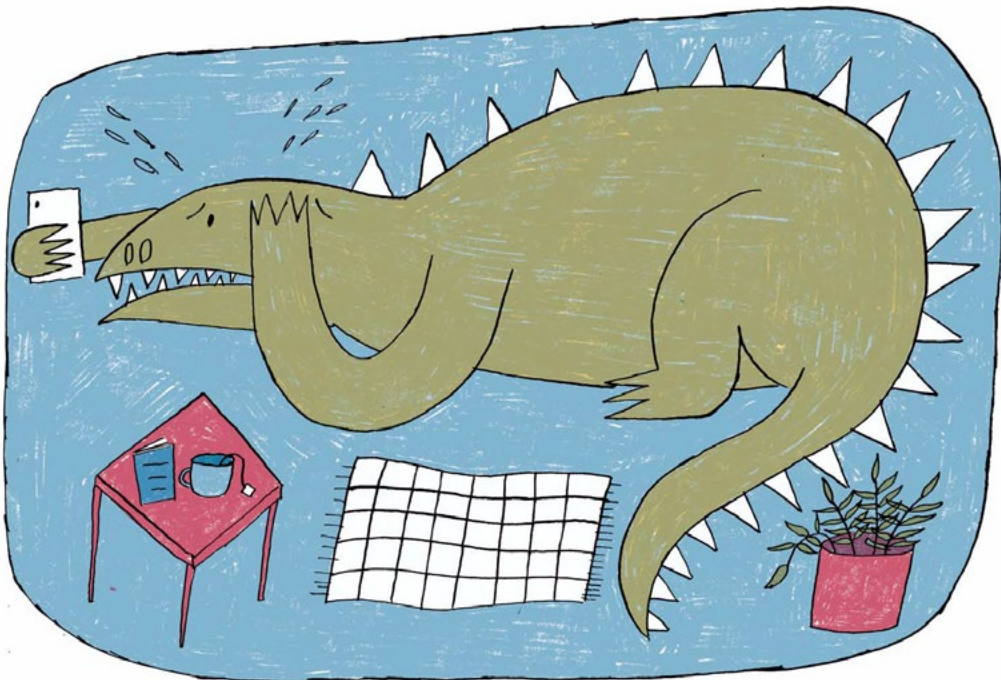

Poor Jean-Rex... Scaring people isn't his favourite pastime. But it's difficult for the gigantic lizard to admit his true interests, being from a family of reptiles whose fear has been their claim to fame for generations. With the help of the inhabitants of the big city where he has settled, Jean-Rex will try to convince his visiting parents that he is the embodiment of terror. Will he succeed? Or will he have to confess his true passion to them? A gigantic book that celebrates its gigantic hero.

Comment faire pour voler

Pour voler, il faut d'abord trouver
Une butte pas trop élevée
Avec un côté très escarpé.

Vous étendez ensuite les bras de chaque côté,
Vous courez, courez, courez...
Vous montez sur la butte, vous sautez...
Et vous vous cassez le nez!

Il ne reste plus qu'à vous féliciter
D'avoir choisi une butte pas trop élevée.
Simon, vous auriez été écrabouillé
Et votre histoire se serait mal terminée!

À la patinoire

Ma patinoire est parfaite pour le hockey
Mais je suis seul à jouer.
Mes amis sont trop frileux.
Tant pis pour eux!

Je remporte la mise au jeu
Et je fonce tête première
Vers mes adversaires imaginaires.
Je les déjoue tous! Ils n'y voient que du feu!

Quand je compte le but victorieux,
Vingt mille spectateurs sautent au plafond!
N'oublions pas les millions et les millions
Qui regardent le match à la télévision!

Je soulève la coupe Stanley,
Et je n'ai jamais été aussi heureux.
Je suis peut-être seul pour jouer au hockey,
Mais dans ma tête, nous sommes très nombreux!

Drôle de journée!

J'ai cherché midi à quatorze heures,
Mais j'ai abouti dans un cinq à sept.

J'ai repéré le sud, l'est et l'ouest,
Mais on m'a donné carte blanche
Et j'ai perdu le nord.

J'ai semé du vent pour me rafraîchir,
Mais je n'ai récolté qu'une tempête
Dans un verre d'eau.

Pour tuer le temps, j'ai voulu faire du sport
Mais l'arbitre a demandé un temps mort.

Scié par ma drôle de journée,
J'ai dormi comme une bûche!

GILBERT AND THE MONSTERS

RHÉA DUFRESNE
PISHIER

Gilbert doesn't want to go to bed. In his room, at night, there's a whole gallery of monsters who just want to... play! Frightening is a thing of the past, and monsters have evolved too. What they want now is to enjoy life, and especially the night, in Gilbert's room, cooking, tinkering, building Lego towers and playing with each other. At this rate, poor Gilbert isn't going to sleep any time soon, and he'd like to play all night anyway.

EMILE'S CAPE

CATHERINE BUQUET
DOMINIQUE YELLE

Emile loves his cape. It's always been with him, turning him into a magician or a sorcerer, and always keeping him entertained. At bedtime, it transforms into a cuddly blanket, giving him sweet dreams. The day his mom decides that his beloved garment is too small and ready to be handed over to his little sister, all hell breaks loose. Emile has no desire to part with it, and that's what he tries to make his mom understand.

Il n'y a pas si longtemps, sa cape lui arrivait aux genoux et aujourd'hui, c'est à peine si elle lui couvre les fesses.

Même en tirant dessus. Même s'il se tient parfaitement droit.

Bon bon bon, soupire maman. Si tu y tiens tant que ça, garde-la.
Le soir, il la pose près de son oreiller.
Juste pour la sentir contre sa joue.

Carlotta, à cette époque, était encore un bébé.
Elle a dû grandir d'un coup: maintenant, la cape lui arrive sous les genoux.

Emile lui attache autour du cou et la cape d'Emile devient celle de Carlotta.

Elle aime l'entendre
fouetter l'air quand elle court sur le trottoir.

Elle aime se glisser
dessous et regarder

petit trou.

Le soir, elle s'y enveloppe et parfois, Emile la rejoint.

Grand-Loup et sa meute se trouvaient

Mon panache pourrait-il me sauver? Mes nasaux

"Sophie has microscopic nails. You have to be a scientist to see them." Sophie has the bad habit of chewing her nails. Because she's hungry or just because she's used to it, she likes to bite them all the time and everywhere, which brings great distraught to her mother. Anxious to fix this situation, Sophie tries all kinds of tricks to curb this habit. But what if this bad reflex could also offer an advantage?

THE MASSAI WARRIOR

LAURENT PINABEL

A young boy, lulled by his father's many travel stories, leads a quiet life by the sea. In the hallway of his house stands a fascinating memorabilia: the statue of a Maasai warrior. The statue seems to watch over the household. Yet one night the warrior wakes up, changing the boy's life forever.

EN ROUTE! ORIANE SMITH | CHLOLOULA

En Route! offers us a pensive portrait, enriched by poetry, of the paths that wind through our lives; of the roads we choose and the routes we take. An invitation to stop a while and fully enjoy our environment and all the moments that make up our daily experience and build our memories. Oriane Smith authors a poetic story on the time that passes and the moments that make us who we are. A soothingly simple creation set to the images of Chloloula, who gives life to our paths, our cities and the places we visit, through richly detailed illustrations.

Coralie is waiting for her new puppy. The waiting is un-bear-a-ble! She cannot wait to meet him—she is going to be his best friend! There will be affection and many little secrets to share. But when the puppy finally arrives, nothing is like what Coralie had planned. This pet is just like a tornado! It never listens; it destroys everything in its path. What a catastrophe! It even peed on the bed. Does this mean Buddy doesn't like Coralie?

JULIE GOOD

THIERRY LENAIN
LAURENT PINABEL

Julie Good-for-Nothing had only one phrase on her lips ever since her mother had passed away: "I'm good-for-nothing." And everyone around her seemed all too happy to remind her, often mocking her for it. One winter evening, on her way home from school, Julie decided to walk to the cemetery. There, at her mother's grave, she found herself surrounded by seven black cats who revealed to her that love transcends death—that her mother hadn't left because she didn't love her but because she was burdened by a painful story that poisoned her soul.

Could this newfound understanding help Julie Good-for-Nothing become Julie Good-for-Everything?

SPEAK UP! SPEAK UP! LITTLE WOLF - NEW EDITION

CLAUDIE STANKÉ
BARROUX

Once upon a time, a little wolf had an earache. It had nothing to do with any illness. This little wolf had heard too many cries, too many things that hurt him, and his ears refused to listen! In a violent family context, Little Wolf tries to express his pain... to his mom? To the teacher? To a friend? Shame prevents him from speaking. It's only in Grandma's arms that he'll finally be able to tell his dark secret. This conversation leads to another, this time with his dad.

Firmin is waiting for his brother's visit. Every time he hears a vehicle approaching in the distance – train, car, or boat – he goes to greet his visitor. However, Firmin never finds his brother but instead encounters other people in need whom he helps by inviting them to his home. At nightfall, Firmin believes that his brother will not come anymore until he hears a sound that no one else hears. Firmin and his guests will then have to join forces to help this long-awaited big brother...

Toc, toc, toc!
Ce matin, Firmin est réveillé par un bruit sur la vitre.
C'est le facteur qui apporte une grande nouvelle.
— Ton frère écrit qu'il vient passer quelques jours chez toi. Il arrivera en fin d'après-midi.
Firmin saute de joie.
— Ça fait si longtemps que je t'ai vu ! Merci, facteur !

Au ponton de la rivière, un bateau accoste. Son grand frère est-il dedans ?
Firmin entend des jappements tremblants et une voix affolée.
— Mon chien est tombé à l'eau, il est frigorifié.
Firmin pense au foulard qu'il doit redonner à Gustave.
Mais il pourra le lui rendre une autre fois. Alors il dit :
— Venez le réchauffer chez moi !

En deux temps, trois mouvements, le sauvetage s'organise.
Firmin descend le long d'une corde et il tend son bras.
Lorsqu'il reconnaît, entre ses doigts, la main de son grand frère, celle qui l'a tant aidé quand ils étaient enfants, Firmin crie à ses compagnons :
— Vous pouvez tirer !
Oh ! hisse ! Oh ! hisse !

J'entre dans le restaurant avec mon amoureux. Et je te vois parmi les autres clients. Pourquoi toi ?
 Tu es assise dos au mur, ton visage d'enfant fixé sur l'adulte assise en face de toi, de l'autre côté de la table.

On s'assoit à notre table habituelle. À un regard de toi qui n'arrêtes pas de la regarder, elle. Tu l'attends. C'est ta mère, si je comprends bien. Et la tête penchée sur son cellulaire, elle échange des textos.

On voudrait pouvoir faire quelque chose, mais quoi ?
 T'invite à notre table peut-être... C'est gênant.
 On ne se connaît pas. Comment réagirait ta mère ?
 On voudrait pouvoir... Mais on ne sait pas comment.

Madame Mouette arrivait la première, à quinze heures précises.

Lorsque Monsieur Pigeon s'engageait à son tour dans le stationnement, cinq minutes plus tard, il s'annonçait par un coup de klaxon: « Pouet! pouet! » Comme les lieux étaient souvent déserts à cette heure-là, Madame Mouette avait l'impression qu'il s'adressait à elle.

Au début, elle ne répondait pas. Puis elle osa le faire.
Timidement, d'abord: « Croua! croua! »
Puis de plus en plus fort: « CROUA! CROUA! »
Un « CROUA! », ma foi, presque accueillant.

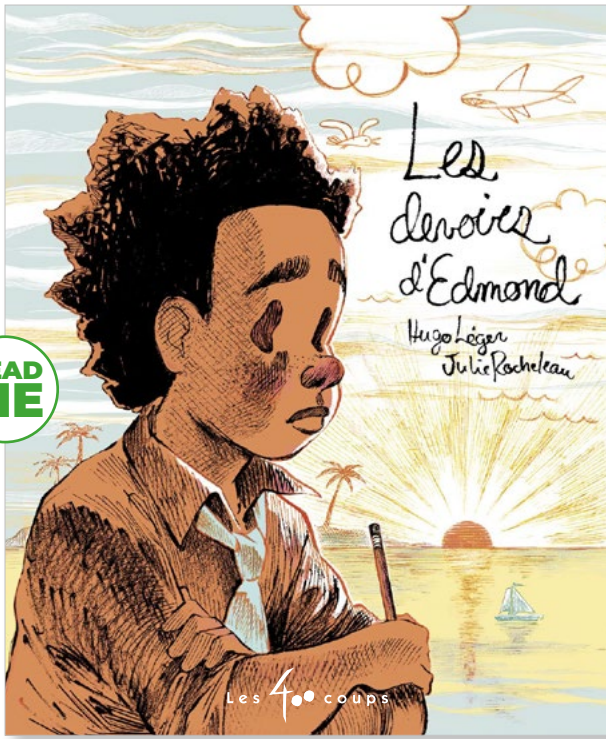

Bientôt, elle s'attarda quelque peu.

Enfin, elle se mit à suivre l'homme en sautillant.
De loin, d'abord. Puis de plus en plus près.

Un jour, Monsieur Pigeon sortit d'un sac les découvertes qu'il avait faites dans le bac à côté de la fruiterie. Madame Mouette s'installa à ses côtés et partagea son repas.

Young Edmond is back from a holiday that turned out to be a tragedy. While his father tries to hide his grief and his sister doesn't really understand what has happened, Edmond must learn to live with the loss of his mom. Edmond wants to help his family in all kinds of ways. He decides that perhaps he could find a job... he might be only 10, but he is big enough to help his dad. Searching for work Edmond meets Raymond and a cat, he calls Dali. With the help of Raymond and his first work experience, Edmond realizes there is no use in rushing things and that he can wait before being an adult; he can and should take the time to be a child, and more importantly to mourn the loss of his mother.

Quelques minutes avant que la mer ne l'avale, on s'amusaient tous les deux. Elle était le requin, j'étais le surfeur.

On l'a retrouvée le lendemain, comme la boîte noire d'un avion.

On ne meurt pas en vacances.

C'est pas juste. On peut pas être très heureux et très malheureux la même journée.

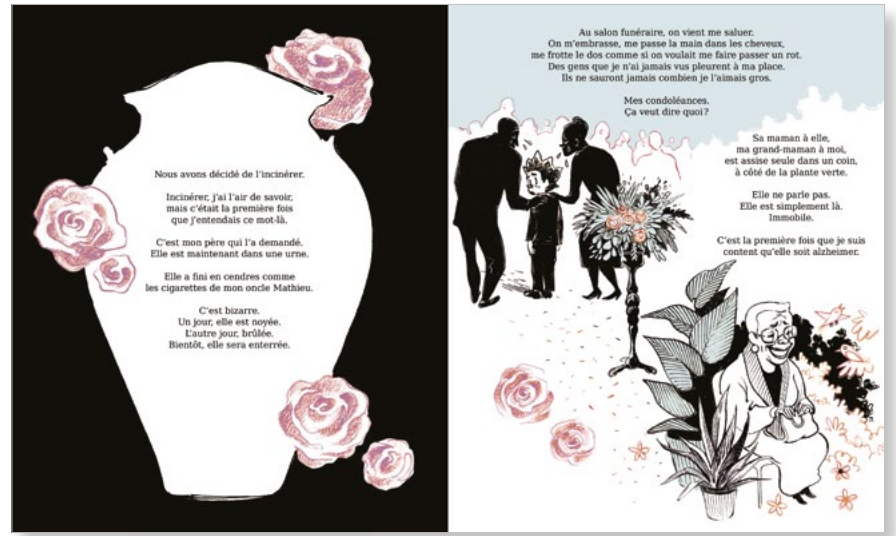

C'est trop rapproché.

Elle était partie sur un catamaran. « J'y vais, le vent est bon », qu'elle a dit. Je voyais son point à l'horizon.

Puis, plus rien.

Comme si elle s'était effacée elle-même avec la gomme de mon étui à crayons. Il est resté, seulement une longue ligne bleue.

Je suis en voyage d'elle pour toujours.

Nous avons décidé de l'incinérer.

Incinérer, j'ai l'air de savoir, mais c'était la première fois que j'entendais ce mot-là.

C'est mon père qui l'a demandé. Elle est maintenant dans une urne.

Elle a fini en cendres comme les cigarettes de mon oncle Mathieu.

C'est bizarre. Un jour, elle est noyée. L'autre jour, brûlée. Bientôt, elle sera enterrée.

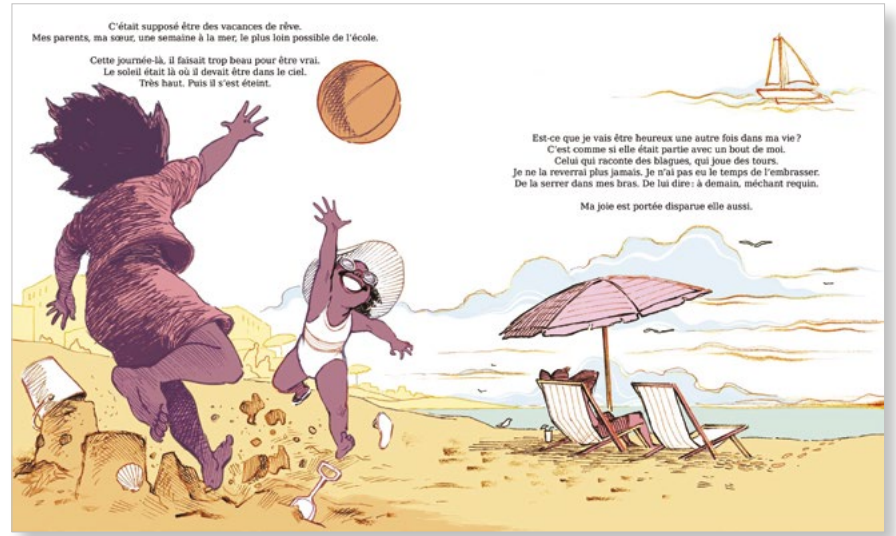

Au salon funéraire, on vient me saluer. On m'embrasse, me passe la main dans les cheveux, me frotte le dos comme si on voulait me faire passer un rot. Des gens que je n'ai jamais vus pleurent à ma place. Ils ne savent jamais combien je l'aimais gros.

Mes condoléances. Ça veut dire quoi ?

Sa maman à elle, ma grand-maman à moi, est assise seule dans un coin, à côté de la plante verte.

Elle ne parle pas. Elle est simplement là, immobile.

C'est la première fois que je suis content qu'elle soit alzheimer.

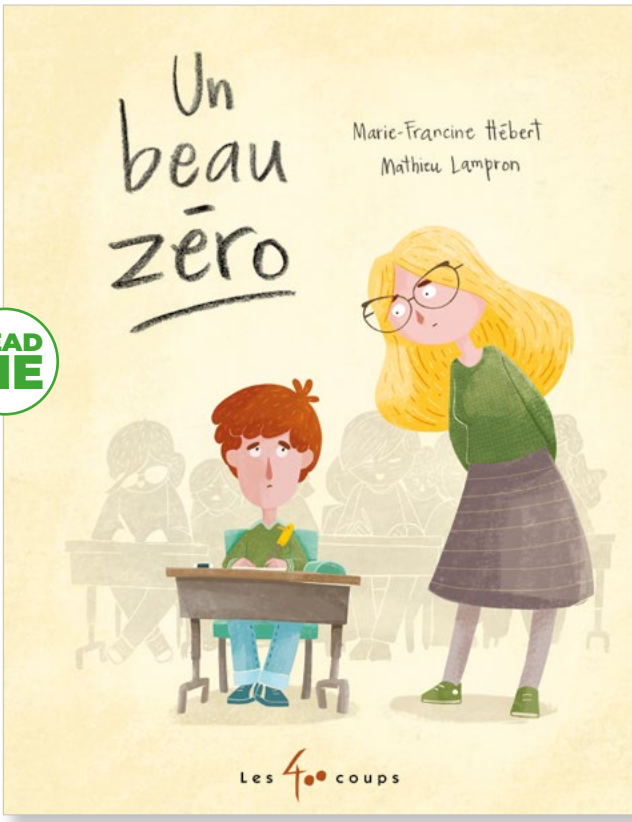

C'était supposé être des vacances de rêve. Mes parents, ma sœur, une semaine à la mer, le plus loin possible de l'école.

Cette journée-là, il faisait trop beau pour être vrai. Le soleil était là où il devait être dans le ciel. Très haut. Puis il s'est éteint.

Est-ce que je vais être heureux une autre fois dans ma vie ? C'est comme si elle était partie avec un bout de moi. Celui qui raconte des blagues, qui joue des tours. Je ne la reverrai plus jamais. Je n'ai pas eu le temps de l'embrasser. De la serrer dans mes bras. De lui dire: à demain, méchant requin.

Ma joie est portée disparue elle aussi.

Mon corps est mon corps, ça veut dire que personne n'a le droit de me faire un bisou ou une caresse si je ne suis pas d'accord. J'étais bien contente d'entendre ça. Surtout que la dame a répété:
– Personne n'a le droit.
– Même pas les taties ? j'ai demandé.
– Même pas les taties, elle a répondu.
J'ai pensé: « Alors pourquoi Tatie Jacotte essaie de me sucer le sang ? »

Ça y est, on est arrivés. Rien que de me trouver devant la porte, ça me donne la nausée. Tatie Jacotte ouvre. Elle embrasse Maman. Elle embrasse Papa. Elle s'approche de moi. Mon cou ! Au secours ! Je ne veux pas !

VLAN !

Voilà, j'ai poussé Tatie Jacotte. Maman me fait les gros yeux:
– Veux-tu embrasser Tatie ?
– Non...

– Et pourquoi ? s'exclame Maman.

Ça sort tout seul de ma bouche:
– Parce que mon corps est mon corps !

Papa essaie de m'excuser:
– Ne vous fâchez pas, Tatie. Elle vient d'apprendre ça à l'école...

Tatie Jacotte grogne:
– De mon temps, à l'école, on apprenait la politesse !
Je pense: « Tu crois que sucer le sang des petites filles, c'est poli ? »

Dans la voiture, comme je l'avais prévu, la colère de maman éclate:
– Non mais, qu'est-ce que c'est que ces histoires ?
Comme une formule magique, je répète:
– Ben... Mon corps est mon corps...
Papa vient à mon secours. Il dit à Maman:
– Ce matin, tu trouvais que c'était une bonne idée d'apprendre ça aux enfants...

Maman s'énerve encore plus:
– Evidemment que c'est une bonne idée ! Mais ça ne veut pas dire qu'elle ne doit pas embrasser Tatie Jacotte !

Papa répond:
– Excuse-moi, chérie. Mais si son corps est son corps, c'est tout le temps et partout, Tatie Jacotte ou pas Tatie Jacotte...

Pour aider Papa, j'ajoute:

THE WOLF, THE HUNTER AND THE HEN
JESSICA KORBEDEAU

Mother Nature gave birth to a hen, a hunter, and a wolf. When she placed the hen in the den, the hunter in the coop, and the wolf in the house, she had no idea that it would change the fate of each of them forever.

IN MY FIR TREE, THERE IS...
MÉLANIE PERREULT | MAURÈEN POIGNONEC

A fir is majestic... and prickly! But it's also a place teeming with life throughout the year. In this fir tree imagined by Mélanie Perreault and illustrated by Maurèen Poignonec, there are all kinds of animals hiding among the branches. But what are they doing? This zig-zag fold book allows the readers to discover all the bustling life in a fir tree, first on a beautiful summer day, then, on the back, on a nice winter evening. In My Fir Tree, there is... is Mélanie Perreault's fourth book.

Un rucher grouillant de vie bourdonne entre les branches.

Puis! Si on ne les dérange pas, les abeilles se piquent, piquent, piquent pas!

Les écureuils les évitent et grimpent vite, vite, vite.

C'est parfait...

Le chat gourmand passe par là.

Surtout du renard, qui, lui, aime bien repiquer le filin à moussaches.

Oh! Mais qui voilà! Le petit Fantache qui lit et sa sœur Augustine qui sert le thé d'après-midi à ses distingués invités.

RIDING TO A NEW CITY – MONTRÉAL 1975

MARC-ANDRÉ BROUILLARD

Montréal is considered one of North America's best cycling cities. But that hasn't always been the case. In 1975, cycling was a dangerous activity. You rode at your own risk. That year, more than 3,000 cyclists were injured, and 67 died in the province of Quebec. This had to stop. That same year, some twenty enthusiasts gathered in Montréal to create "Le Monde à bicyclette" (The World on Bike): What did these enthusiasts want? Safe bike paths everywhere, including bridges, dedicated parking lots, bike access to the subway, and so on. But they also wanted to question our mainly car-centric urban development, which eats away city budgets, pollutes and even kills! How were they to go about this? By transforming the streets of Montréal into a living theater!

Je m'appelle Robert Silverman,

mieux connu sous le nom de « Bicycle Bob* ». C'est moi, l'équilibriste à vélo qui zigzague entre les voitures. La bicyclette est mon moyen de transport, mais c'est aussi mon mode de vie!

Un vélo, c'est la liberté. Chaque coup de pédale me donne de l'énergie et rend mon corps plus fort. À vélo, je me sens lié à ma ville, aux gens de mon quartier et à tous les autres cyclistes, jeunes et moins jeunes.

En 1975, à Montréal, nous sommes de plus en plus nombreux à enfourcher chaque jour notre monture pour aller travailler, faire des courses ou partir à l'aventure. Mais circuler à vélo dans les rues, c'est à nos risques et périls. Le bilan des accidents* au Québec donne froid dans le dos. Soixante-sept cyclistes sont morts, et il y a eu 3009 blessés cette année. C'est triste à dire, mais au 20<sup>e</sup> siècle, les guerres ont fait moins de victimes que la voiture!

Pourtant, la voiture est partout. Elle prend toute la place sur l'asphalte. Elle enlaidit ma ville d'autoroutes et de stationnements. Ses nuages de monoxyde de carbone m'irritent la gorge, et ses vrombissements, de jour comme de nuit, m'agressent les tympans.

Il faut que ça change.

Et, derrière mon guidon, je veux être un acteur du changement.

« Nous croyons que la bicyclette est le moyen de transport le plus sain, le plus économique et le plus efficace [...] »

Le vélo est le véhicule du bon sens, il conserve l'énergie, il libère l'environnement et il est économiquement salubre. »

Quelques semaines après la création du Monde à bicyclette, je rédige un manifeste*, un document qui servira à faire connaître nos revendications.

NOUS RECLAMONS des pistes cyclables et le droit de voyager dans le dernier wagon du métro avec notre bicyclette.

NOUS VOULONS des stationnements sécuritaires pour vélos, et des voies cyclables sur les ponts.

NOUS VOULONS aussi sensibiliser la population aux nuisances de la voiture: la pollution, le bruit et les dangers qu'elle représente pour les cyclistes et les piétons.

Nous voulons des rues pour y vivre, pas pour y mourir.

Dans ce manifeste, je propose également cette idée folle. Et si la Ville achetait 10 000 bicyclettes pour les mettre à la disposition des Montréalais?

Les bicyclettes seraient dispersées un peu partout dans la ville. Les citoyens pourraient les emprunter en versant un dépôt et en présentant une pièce d'identité. Pas bête, non?

• Le 16 juin 1980, 11 jours après l'arrestation de Bob, le gouvernement québécois annonce qu'il veut investir 2 millions de dollars dans la création d'un réseau de pistes cyclables totalisant 280 kilomètres sur l'île de Montréal. L'axe Nord-Sud figure sur les tracés présentés ce jour-là.

• Le tout premier TOUR DE L'ÎLE à vélo, qui marque l'inauguration de la piste cyclable de l'est, longue de 58 km, se tient le 13 octobre 1985. Sur les 7000 cyclistes inscrits, seulement 3500 se pointent en raison du mauvais temps, mais l'événement attire l'année suivante 15 000 participants.

• Le Tour de l'île devient l'un des événements emblématiques de Montréal. Reconnu par Le Livre des records Guinness comme le plus grand rassemblement de cyclistes dans le monde, il est organisé par Vélo Québec* et rassemble, de 1992 à 1997, des foules moyennes de 45 000 cyclistes.

LOUIS RIEL AND AN IMPROBABLE COUNTRY

ANDRÉ LEBLANC
ARCHIVE IMAGES

There are many books which deal with Louis Riel and the Métis resistance, but in André Leblanc's version, he has chosen to be a storyteller. In the simplest and clearest possible way, the author tells us of an extremely complex and eventful story, which began in a foggy England of the 17th century.
